

SQ-9: If you found an important article for your research, can you rank your activities?

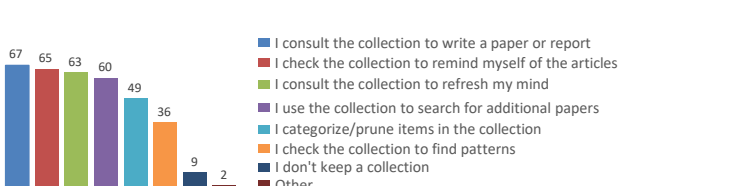

SQ-10: What type of information sources do you save in your collection?

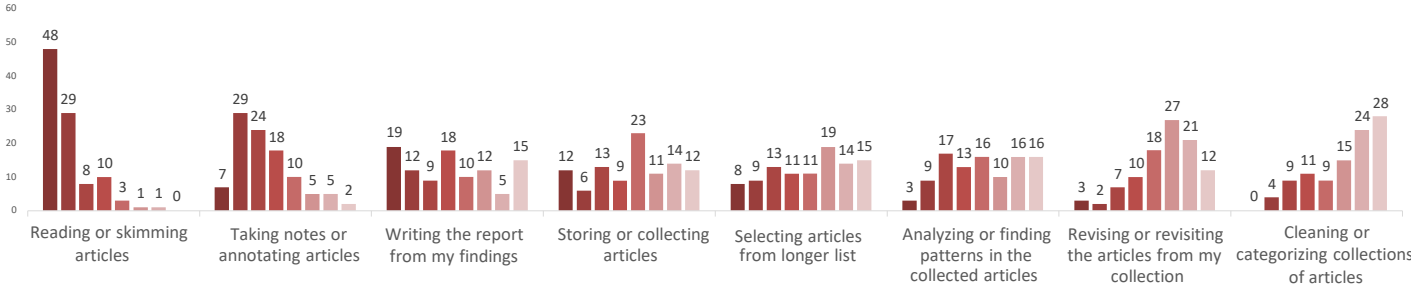

SQ-11: After reading or skimming an article, do you take notes? If yes, how do you take notes?

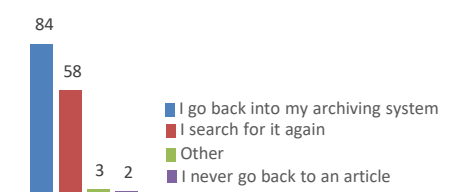

SQ-13: If you are managing a collection of references or documents, select all the possible activities you do on your collection?

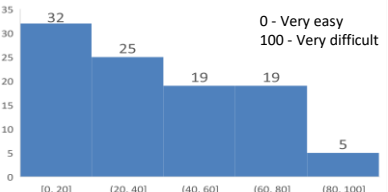

SQ-12: How do you rank the amount of time you spend on different research tasks.

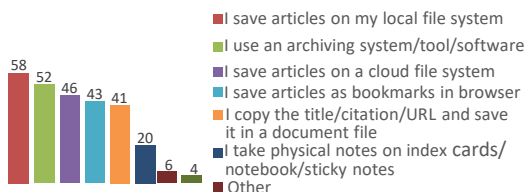

SQ-14: During your research or literature review, how do you go back to an article?

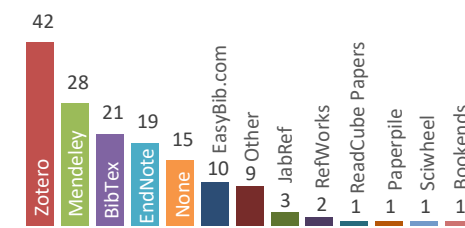

SQ-15: How easy is it for you to take electronic notes on items like PDF files?

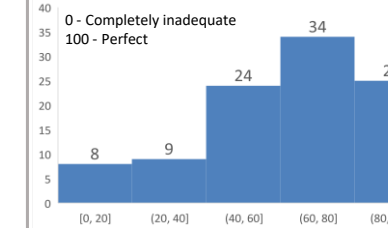

SQ-16: Do you use an archiving tool for your research? If yes, which options apply?

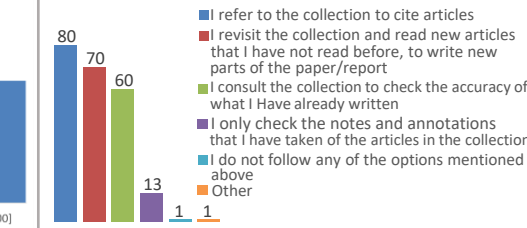

SQ-17: Do you use any reference management tools commonly used by researchers?

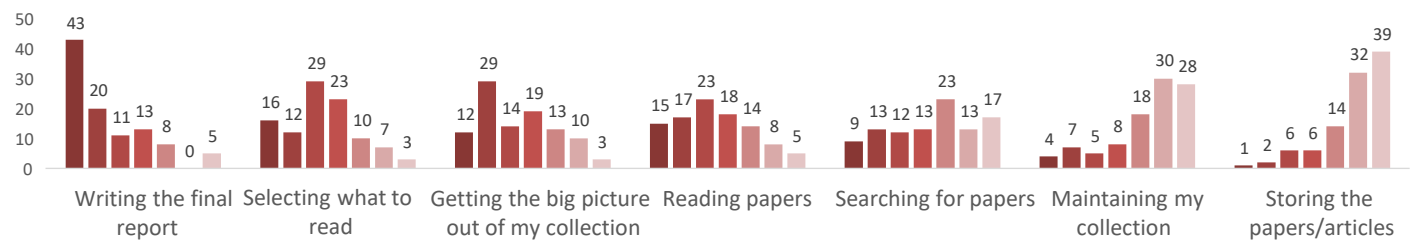

SQ-18: How well do reference management tools aid final writing in your experience?

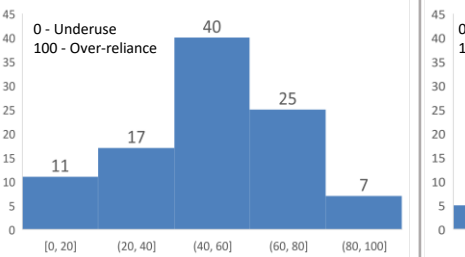

SQ-19: When you are writing your report how do you use your collection, annotations, and notes?

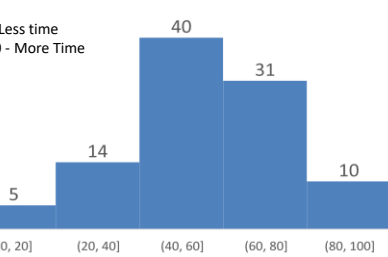

SQ-20: In your entire process, from searching for an article to writing the final paper, which part of the process feels most challenging for you?

SQ-22: How much do you agree: "I satisfactorily utilize my collection for final writing"

SQ-23: How much do you agree: "I wish I spent more time building my collection"

SQ-24: How much do you agree: "I wish I spent more time analyzing my collection"

